Law Faculty Statement of Provision for PGR students

1. What arrangements will be put in place for supervising the graduate's work?

You will have a named supervisor or supervisors, normally as indicated in your offer letter, who will have overall responsibility for the direction of your work on behalf of the Faculty. Typically, you should expect to have individual meetings with your supervisor for one hour not less than two to three times each term, but the frequency may vary according to the time of year and according to the stage you are at in your research programme. Further information about the role of the supervisor is provided below in Appendix A Research Supervision: a brief guide.

2. What induction arrangements will be made?

You will have Faculty induction before the beginning of your first term, when you will receive an induction pack of essential information and guidance. The main induction to the Faculty is provided in the week preceding the start of Michaelmas Term. Other arrangements will be made for students starting at other times of the year. Your supervisor(s) will arrange more specialised induction subsequently, and you should make a particular effort to meet with your supervisor during induction week to discuss your studies.

In addition, all students are invited to attend a Social Sciences Division induction event through the Social Sciences Doctoral Training Centre. Invitations will be sent out via the Social Sciences Division and the event will take place on the afternoon of Wed 17 Oct 2012 (week 2).

3. What workspace will be provided?

Workspace will be related to individual circumstances and the facilities available within the Faculty. There is a dedicated graduate reading room available in the Bodleian Law Library. This includes 50 study spaces, many of which are equipped with an Ethernet socket. Wireless access is also available. Graduates are able to store their personal effects in lockers at the St Cross Building. Students in Socio-Legal studies and Criminology will have access to workspace at the affiliated centres.

4. What IT support/ library facilities/ experimental facilities will be available?

The faculty has its own IT provision and specialist IT support staff including an IT Learning and Teaching Officer, an IT Support and Database Officer, and Web Development and Support Officers. You will have access to the Bodleian Law Library and the Social Sciences Library (in addition to other university libraries, and the centrally provided electronic resources) and experimental facilities are available where relevant. Training on how to use the Library’s legal and journal database is jointly provided by the Law faculty and the Bodleian Library. Training begins at induction and continues in special sessions through term. These are advertised at www.ouls.ox.ac.uk/law

5. Which research seminars will be available?

You will have access to the seminars that the Faculty organises, and those which individual research groups or groups with common areas of interest organise for their own members and others within the Faculty. You will also have the opportunity to access seminars organised by other departments in areas relevant to your research area. Students may also attend MSc in Criminology and Criminal Justice seminars. Seminars are listed at http://denning.law.ox.ac.uk/postgraduate/bclcourses.phtml
6. What access to research funds will be available?

The faculty has a number of studentships and other small grants for research students (for example, to assist with conference attendance or fieldwork expenses). A list of studentships in Law is available at http://denning.law.ox.ac.uk/postgraduate/scholarships.shtml. The Law Faculty also runs a Graduate Travel Grant scheme, which is open only to research students who are either conducting empirical or archival research elsewhere in order to complete their degree, or who are presenting a chapter of their thesis at an academic conference. A small grant is typically available during the course of the academic year. For students on studentships that include an amount to support their research, such as research council studentships (typically AHRC or ESRC Research Training Support Grants), you will be expected to exhaust this source of funding first before any application to the Faculty’s Graduate Travel Grant scheme will be considered.

7. What formal graduate research and skills training will be provided?

You will have the opportunity to attend a variety of skills training sessions offered by the Faculty as appropriate to different stages of your graduate career, as well as training geared to your specific research needs. The Law faculty requires every research student to complete the Course in Legal Research Method (though see below provisions for students in Criminology and Socio-Legal Studies). The course aims to assist research students in establishing a sound methodological base for their legal research and writing in its early stages. It is structured around discussions between graduate students and members of the Faculty. Further information about the course can be found at http://denning.law.ox.ac.uk/oxfordonly/students.clrm.shtml. Students working in /Criminology may, with the permission of the Director of Graduate Studies (Research), take two out of three courses in empirical research methods (Research Design and Data Collection, Social Explanation and Data Analysis, and Qualitative Methods) in place of the course in Legal Research Method. Students working in Socio-Legal Studies will take the course in Theory and Method in Socio-Legal Research, which covers theoretical approaches as well as practical research skills such as use of databases and library resources.

There are also opportunities to access advanced and specialist research training provided elsewhere in the Social Sciences Division and University, via the Social Sciences Doctoral Training Centre. Further information is available on the Research Methods hubs pages (Qualitative Methods and Quantitative Methods) of the DTC WebLearn site, and you can enrol via the Student Enrolment System.

The Social Sciences Division organises an Academic and Professional Development Programme covering a range of relevant generic skills. Details of the programme are available via the Student Enrolment System (SES) in WebLearn.

Information about training and other courses offered across the University is available through the University Skills Hub https://weblearn.ox.ac.uk/portal/hierarchy/skills. This site provides information about transferable skills development for research students and
8. What opportunities will be available for developing and practicing teaching skills (for second and third year graduates)?

For advanced research students who are interested in teaching, the faculty runs an annual teacher training seminar. This seminar is mandatory for the faculty’s Graduate Teaching Assistants (GTAs). Law Faculty Graduate Teaching Assistantships are created in areas of Faculty need and GTAs are awarded £1,000. They are expected to provide 48 hours of tutorial teaching for colleges in an academic year. Additional opportunities to undertake tutorial teaching in colleges are available outside the GTA scheme. All students proposing to teach are strongly encouraged to take the Faculty annual teacher training seminar.

9. What arrangements for accommodation, meals and social facilities, will be made, on a year round basis?

Law Faculty seminars bring research students together with academic and other research staff to hear about and debate on-going research, and to provide an opportunity for networking and socializing. Postgraduate research students in law participate in subject specific discussion groups that are organized by graduate students and Faculty members and meet regularly each term. These lunches, sponsored by the faculty, provide research students with further opportunities to present their work and also allow a forum for discussion of areas of common interest.

College:

Many colleges will be able to provide you with at least one year’s accommodation. Generally speaking your college will provide meals throughout the year, but provision will vary from college to college, especially during vacations, and you will need to familiarise yourself with your college’s detailed arrangements. In addition there are usually self-catering facilities available in graduate accommodation. You will be a member of the Middle Common Room, or equivalent, of your college, which is the main social centre for graduates. The MCR provides a common room and usually organises a programme of social events throughout the year. The college will also provide a bar, some computing facilities and a library, and may often have dedicated funds for research (conference and field grants). It also represents the interests of its members to the college through an elected Committee or through elected representatives to College Committees. Again, details will vary from college.

Central:

Graduate Research Students may become members of the University Club in Mansfield Road, and participate in the range of sporting and cultural activities provided by the University.

10. What arrangements are in place for pastoral and welfare support?

Department:

Within the Faculty, your supervisor, Director of Graduate Studies (Research) and Academic Administrator are all available to offer support or advise you on where to obtain appropriate support. The faculty also has its own Graduate studies Officer, who answers questions and advises on students’ progress.

College:

There is an extensive framework of support for graduates within each college. Your college will allocate to you a College Advisor from among its Senior Members, usually in a cognate subject, who will arrange to see you from time to time and whom you may contact for additional advice and support on academic and other matters. In college you may also approach the Tutor for Graduates and/or the Senior Tutor for advice. The Tutor for Graduates is a fellow of the college with particular responsibility for the interests and welfare of graduate students. In some colleges, the Senior Tutor will also have the role of Tutor for Graduates. Each college will also have other named individuals who can offer individual advice. The University also has a professionally staffed confidential Student Counselling Service which offers assistance with personal, emotional, social and academic problems.

Central:

The University provides a Student Counselling Service and Careers Service

11. What arrangements are in place for gaining the views of research students?

Individual student feedback is sought regularly through such means as taught course evaluation forms. The Faculty's Graduate Studies Committee (GSC) has five postgraduate representatives: one BCL, one MJur, one MSc, one first year research student, and one DPhil. The GSC meets twice a term and postgraduate students are given a chance to help shape the agenda and prepare papers for each meeting. They are active participants on the Committee and consult with their respective constituencies on issues of interest. The Director of Graduate Studies (Research) confers with the representatives, and also holds a termly party for all research students, at which they are invited to talk to him of her about their programme, or to arrange a meeting.

At divisional level, there is a PGR Discussion Forum, made up of student representatives from each department/faculty of the division. Issues raised by this body are reported to the Division’s Graduate Studies Committee.

The views of research students are also sought by both the Faculty and the University through questionnaires. The faculty questionnaire is administered in the summer and is available online on the faculty’s intranet. The director of Graduate Studies (Research) considers the feedback and uses this data in future planning. The feedback is also shared with the faculty.

Research supervision: a brief guide

The role of the supervisor is to:

- Establish a timetable of regular meetings for detailed discussion of your progress (the frequency of meetings will depend upon the stage you are at in your research, but typically you would expect to meet your supervisor two or three times per term).
- Agree a research plan and programme of work, and to establish clear academic expectations and milestones.
- Agree with you a timetable for the submission of written work and to return your work within a reasonable time.
- Assess formally your subject-specific and personal and professional skills training needs on a regular basis and ensure that these needs are met.
- Co-operate with you to produce a detailed joint report on your progress at the end of each term.
- Ensure you are aware of the formal requirements in relation to transfer (Qualifying Test) and confirmation of status and final submission, and help you to incorporate these into your plan of work.

The role of the student is to:

- Maintain regular contact with your supervisor, and respond to him/her in good time.
- Meet with your supervisor regularly, keep a written record of your discussions, and give due weight to any guidance or corrective action proposed.
- Draw up a research plan and timetable of work in consultation with your supervisor, and to keep relevant records of all aspects of your work.
- Co-operate with your supervisor to make a detailed joint report on your progress at the end of each term.
- Take responsibility for your research programme, including the development of subject-specific, research, and personal and professional skills.
- Take responsibility for (i) the preparation and content of your thesis, giving due regard to any advice from your supervisor, and (ii) its timely submission in accordance with the timetable set.
- Be aware of the University's guidance on plagiarism and of any ethical or legal issues, health and safety requirements, or intellectual property issues arising from your research.
- Pursue opportunities to engage with the wider academic community at University, national, and international level.
