

Call for applications: Bonavero Institute Graduate Research Residency Programme for students working in the broad field of human rights at Oxford University.

It's time to apply for the Bonavero Institute of Human Rights Graduate Research Residency Programme 2027. This is a great opportunity to find a peer research community in Oxford and become part of the Bonavero Institute community working from a shared workspace in the Institute's building in Mansfield College. In turn, we will provide you with support and skills training.

Eligibility

The call is open to Oxford University graduate research students working in human rights, public law, public international law, the rule of law and/or related fields. Successful applicants will be allocated a shared workspace in the Helena Kennedy Reading Room at the Bonavero Institute for one year from 17 January to 4 December 2027.

Application

To apply, please read the details, including selection criteria, of the Programme as set out on our Graduate Research Residency Programme page, and follow the procedure set out in therein, and below.

Please send a single pdf file containing your completed application form, CV, and a brief statement as to why you would like to be a Graduate Research Resident, with the subject heading 'Graduate Research Residency Application' to: bonavero-programmes@law.ox.ac.uk. Applications close at 12 noon UK time on 12 November 2026. Late applications will not be considered.

You will be notified no later than noon on 20 November 2026 as to whether your application has been successful.