

Legal Studies Department
Nador u 15, Budapest

Mirko Đuković
SJD/Ph.D. candidate

September 15, 2022

Centre for Health, Law and Emerging Technologies (HeLEX)
Faculty of Law, University of Oxford

VISITOR'S LETTER

I was a Visiting Researcher at HeLEX from June to September 2022. It was a pleasure to be affiliated with a team of wonderful people and welcoming colleagues who showed nothing but support and genuine interest in my work during my Ph.D. project Conceptualizing Biomedical Law in the 21st Century: Regulating Biomedicine and the Case of Bioprinting of Human Tissues.

During my visit to HeLEX, I was able to present my project and have extensive discussions with researchers who were eager to share their views as well as introduce me to scholarship or data gathered on their BioGov project. This turned out to be extremely important for shaping my research and writing most of the chapter on the regulation of bioprinting.

Additionally, I was invited to support the organization of the BioGov end of the project Workshop, where I participated and was introduced to an important body of work on the governance of biomodifying technologies in the UK. This was also an opportunity to meet other colleagues from the UK who had interesting views on the future of bioprinting technology and regulatory challenges.

I am very grateful to Jane Kaye and Michael Morrison for their kind guidance and input that not only contributed to the writing process of my thesis but also to developing ideas for some future work. My visit would not be possible without the support of the fantastic Imogen Holbrook. My entire stay with HeLEX felt as if we had all met and worked together before. Thus, my experience in visiting Oxford and working either in HeLEX offices or in one of the Bodleian libraries remains the highlight of my Ph.D. journey.

I appreciate the opportunity to meet and work with HeLEX team, and I look forward to working with them again.

With gratitude,

Mirko Đuković