

Join our Survivor Reference Group and shape research into sexual offence courts

Researchers at Oxford are researching trauma-informed specialist sexual offence courts, including SSVS courts at Leeds, Newcastle and Snaresbrook Crown Court.

We're adopting a trauma-informed approach and want to prioritise survivors involvement in the study.

Before we speak to survivors about their experiences of the courts, we want to ensure we get our interview approach right.

That's why we're asking survivors who've been through the court process to join the Reference Group and review our interview strategy.

. Participation is online, takes no more than 6 hours and involves:

- A 30 mins online meeting with the researchers;
- Reading our interview guide and interview questions; and
- Giving us feedback, either via email, track changes or Teams meeting.

Survivors will receive a one-off payment to recognise their expertise.

To join, email the project lead, natalie.kyneswood@csls.ox.ac.uk.
